

Canary Dwarf . . . the new 100ft tower for Cambridge airport.

---

Battle fanatics want to recruit more comrades

PEOPLE with a penchant for the past, Anglo-Saxon and Viking wars in particular, are being sought by a re-enactment group.

The Heydon-based team, who call themselves the New Gesitha (Anglo-Saxon for companions), are looking for people who would be interested in joining them for re-enactments at various venues around the country.

Activities they undertake include combat and craft skills demonstrations, as well as story-telling and drama.

Members will be expected to meet for training or making the required gear for about a couple of hours on a Friday night.

Paul Allen, team co-ordinator, said: "We have a number of established members in the group but we are looking for many more.

"There is a strong family element within our group so children from school age onwards are also very welcome."

For more details call Mr Allen on (01763) 838759.

---

Holidays for temps

A NEW recruitment company with a difference is opening its doors for business on Monday.

Keith Brown has joined forces with Tim Radford to form Solutions in Recruitment, which will operate from Queens Square, Haverhill.

Mr Brown will specialise in motor trade and sales and Mr Radford in temporary functions in administration, industrial, technical and other fields.

All temporary workers will have the chance to receive 20 days paid annual leave and the new company provides other benefits it says are not offered by other East Anglian agencies.

A Solutions in Recruitment web site is currently being set up at www.solutionsinrecruitment.co.uk and will hold updated vacancy information and a CV e-mail facility.

Summer 2000
Cambridge evening
News or Raysher Crow